When you hire a photographer, it's crucial to establish clear expectations to ensure a successful collaboration. Firstly, the scope of work should be clearly defined, detailing the events or subjects to be photographed, the number of images required, and the deadlines for delivery. Secondly, the university should communicate its brand and image standards to the photographer, ensuring that the photos align with the institution's identity and messaging. Lastly, the terms of usage rights and ownership of the photographs must be agreed upon, determining how the images will be used and who holds the copyright.
